

Strangers look like ordinary people. They may even seem friendly. That's why it is important to not be tricked by strangers.

What parents can do:

- Point out adults that kids can trust.
- Let them know who is allowed to pick them up from school.
- Role-play to teach what to do in a situation.
- Start by teaching your young child her full name, then your full name, then your phone number and address.
- Prep older children for being home alone e.g. what to do if a stranger is trying to come inside, etc.

What children must know:

- Do not talk to strangers.
- Do not accept sweets or drinks from strangers.
- If you feel scared call the nearest adult.
- If you feel scared and no one is around, run away and shout for help as loud as you can.
